American Gynecological Society, 1879. iv, PP-433 437 The Corpus Luteum. One of the most important early contributions to the scientific side of obstetrics in America was the work of Joh C. Dalton, Jr., upon the corpus luteum. His first work upon the subject appeared in 1851 as a monograph of 100 pages, which was still further elaborated in a communication made to the American Gynecological Society in 1877. In these the author attempted to prove that there is a marked difference in the structure of the corpus luteum of menstruation and that of pregnancy, and although his conclusions are no longer regarded as correct, his work deserves mention as a valuable study of the subject. One of the most productive and industrious...
