The series of readings reported in this chapter closed with a passage which the subject was asked to read carefully to himself and to repeat word for word to the phonograph. The passage was as follows: Then the magician sat down and began to talk with Aladdins mother: My good sister, said he, do not be surprised that you have never seen me during all the time you have been married to my brother Mustapha. I have been forty years absent from this country; and during that time have traveled in many lands until finally I settled in Africa. The purpose of these directions was to check once more the complete understanding of what was read and to secure a record of the effect of a demand for word-for-word reproduction as contrasted with the earlier, vaguer demand, report everything you can remember. Complete and usable series of records were secured from five subjects. These were students from three high schools. Four were rated as superior, one as weak. They were from the Junior and Senior years of the high school and in one case, A28, 1 from the first year of a junior college connected with a high school. Their records in reading and their school records show them to be a typical superior high-school group. The findings reported in earlier chapters justify the belief that general averages will be of less value in the study of such complex forms of reading as...
