Third Year THE SOCIAL PROBLEM ELLWOOD An Introductory Word Is America headed toward revolution Is our western civilization on the verge of disaster and overthrow It is a striking fact that a sober student like Professor Ell wood, a man of high scientific standing, can propound such questions. It is more important still that we can cite facts to show that such questions are not idle. If such is the situation, we wish to know about it. And we wish to have guidance as to what may be done. We are all familiar with social problems, whether we call them by that name or not. All problems are social which concern the life which we live together: our work, our play, our wages, our health, the natural resources upon which we all depend, or our political life. Professor Ell wood does not discuss every social problem. He is considering The Social Problem in its main aspects, showing the meaning of these various parts, how they hang together, and what underlies them all. It is hardly necessary to point out why the Christian minister should be interested in these problems. He is interested as a man, Copyright, 1917, by The Methodist Book Concern for we deal here with matters that go to the heart of human life and welfare. He is interested as a Christian, for Christianity is interested in the whole of human life, not in some fraction of it. He is interested as a...
